We are dedicated to treating each person globally, understanding that there may be emotional, mental and spiritual components to their physical needs.

We consider respect, trust and integrity to be essential in everything we do. We expect honest, ethical behavior from ourselves and encourage it in others.

Our employees live and work in the larger context of society; therefore, we value and encourage responsible individual and corporate citizenship. We recognize our obligation to be a positive influence in the communities in which we maintain a presence.

We are progressive in our response to the changing needs of our business and prudent in the management of our resources.

We value superior high quality work at the individual unit and corporate level.

Without apology, we are profit oriented for only profitable companies can adapt and survive to meet their long-term commitments to their patients, employees and community.
